Overview: This bibliography lists works on the history of law in South Asia. Its special focus is British India. Where the title of a book or article does not clearly reflect its legal themes, I have listed them in square brackets at the end of the entry. I have only included titles on the British Empire that cover South Asia extensively. Works with a contemporary focus but significant historical content have also been included. I have listed special issues of journals not only by their component articles, but also by the title of the journal itself. (I thank Nandini Chatterjee, Rohit De, Marc Galanter, James Jaffe, Kalyani Ramnath, Rachel Sturman and others for sharing syllabi and references with me.)
